Guilty plea in Harcourt murder case

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A Paudash man pleaded guilty to the 1989 murder of Highland Grove resident Fred Harvey in a Lindsay court last Thursday.

Lloyd Morrow, 29, pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was given a life sentence with no chance of parole for 10 years.

Harvey, who was 46-years-old at the time of his death, was found buried in a wooded area in Harcourt park in August, 1989. He had been fatally shot four times in the back with his own rifle.

Morrow was charged with first degree murder and Thursday's appearance was to have been the start of a lengthy jury trial. But after several hours of discussions involving defence attorney Ford Clements, Crown attorney Chris Meinhardt and Judge Richard Clarke, Morrow pleaded guilty to the lesser charge.

After Morrow entered his plea, Judge Clarke excused the jurors and Meinhardt explained the circumstances leading up to Harvey's murder.

He said Morrow had worked for Harvey, who ran a logging operation in the Harcourt area, over a period of three months in the spring of 1989. During that time, Morrow borrowed a 1979 Pontiac from Harvey because his own vehicle had been damaged.

The week before his death, Harvey was trying to contact Morrow to have the car returned because he was planning a trip to western Canada.

Arrangements were made for Morrow to deliver the car to Harvey's house on the weekend of August 26 - 27, and Harvey was seen on Monday, August 28 when he went to work at a logging site in Harcourt Park.

A friend of Harvey's became concerned when he didn't return to his house Monday evening and she contacted Chester Schwandt, the man who owned the timber rights to the site Harvey was logging, and asked him to visit the area in which Harvey had been working to see if anything had happened to him.

Maybe a push was needed by this young musher, a participant in the kid and mutt race at this weekend's Minden Sled Dog Derby. There certainly was some confusion on the part of his dog, that seemed to want to run behind his master. For more on the event, please turn to page 10.

Stanhope rejects re-assessment plan

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Stanhope council has rejected immediate implimentation of the proposed market value re-assessment, and is asking the county to delay the proposal in favour of more study.

All councils are being asked to consider the proposed re-assessment before the county votes on the issue at its next meeting.

In deciding not to support the plan, Stanhope councillors said not enough time was allowed to determine the effect the re-assessment will have on property taxes.

They suggested county should hold off for a year, so the full effect of the change can be determined. It was also agreed upon that if the county choses to go ahead with re-assessment in 1992, it should be phased in over a period of four years.

"It took four years to prepare and they want a decision in 30 days or less," said Councillor Murray Daniels.

Referring to the Ministry of Revenue timetable for implimentation, Deputy-Reeve Ann Barker said; "The province is never normally in such a rush to get things done."

Having the Minstry of Revenue prepare the re-assessment plan is like "putting Colonel Saunders in charge of chicken safety," said Councillor Fred Gardiner.

Reeve Harry Davis told council he will be voting against immediate implimentation of the market value re-assessment because insufficient time has be given for study. "Any municipality that votes in favour of it doesn't understand the impact," he said. "It's scary."

Councillor Eleanor Harrison suggested that Davis should lobby the other reeves in the county to delay the assessment changes. "Any reeve that votes 'yes' that quickly hasn't done his homework," said Harrison.

Stanhope council also got a taste of just how unpopular market value re-assessment is among some ratepayers, particularly those who own waterfront property.

The township received three letters urging council to vote against the proposal.

The strongest stand came from the president of the Boshkung Lake Property Owners Association. In a letter to Davis, association president Frank Gump urged the reeve to reject the re-assessment and said there would be a political backlash if the proposal is approved.

Country needs strong central government

This week's Canadian Forum is written by Gord Monk. A resident of Minden for 15 years, Monk is the owner and operator of funeral homes in Minden and Bobcaygeon. He is an active member of the community who has served on numerous boards and commissions as well as taking an active interest in national and provincial funeral home issues.

Canadian Forum

by Gordon A. Monk

The formation of the Spicer Commission to seek out the opinions of the Canadian citizens can only be deemed a positive step by the Government of Canada. The next positive step will be to listen to those opinions and attempt to form a melting pot whereby the true problems of the country can be given some hope of resolve. This will take parliamentary reform, constitutional reform, strong leadership without continual appeasement of vocal minorities, recognition of the fact that we are first and foremost Canadian (a strong sense of national pride) and secondly, recognize and appreciate that through diversity of origin we can form a strong bond of unity. In an environment of changed attitudes and tolerance Canada does have a future.

Canada cannot survive where one group continues to threaten to withdraw or leave because they, rightly or wrongly, feel they are not getting a fair shake. One can easily imagine the turmoil, lack of progress, loss of productivity and low morale in a small commercial concern where one or two of the partners are unwilling to sit down and discuss their true differences and frustrations and work to a common goal to resolve them. Canada on a larger scale is no different, the basic root problems have not been uncovered and openly and honestly dealt with.

I fail to believe that the Quebec problem is primarily linguistic or cultural. If such were the situation how does one rationalize the success of the Franco-American co-existence in the southern U.S.A.? Being multi-cultural or multi-lingual is not a unique situation to Canada, but being mature and adult in trying to co-exist, finding a common goal as a melting pot is so far elusive in this great country of ours. The words "one nation, indivisible" taken from Lincoln's Gettysburg address haunt me as I write. Canada does have a future, but all Canadians have differences to set aside whatever they may be before the level playing field can be established and only then will Canada survive.

If and when Canada survives, what kind of country do we really want - one nation, indivisible, the true north strong and free; yes - this and more. We want a country that has strong leadership, not rule by appeasement, where true equal opportunity does exist for those who want it. An entrepreneurial environment is much healthier for economic and social growth. Socialism has proven time and again to stunt economic growth, we simply do not have the financial resources to afford such luxury.

We require a strong central government to enact legislation and enforce it equitably. Government should stay out of the private sector. I strongly favour a situation where elected representatives are given the authority to vote on issues where their conscience dictates versus party lines, i.e. the recent expulsion from caucus of two Alberta M.P.'s smacks of dictatorship and diminishes the democratic role of elected members. I strongly favour an elected senate and most of all an elected President and Vice President. The present system of selecting a leader needs to be changed, the leader should be elected independent of the ruling party in the lower house of parliament and needs to be held more accountable. The system of appointing senators for political expediency needs to be abolished immediately. Bureaucratic powers need to be diminished and the bureaucrats must become more responsible and accountable to the elected representatives.

Finally, civil disobedience, i.e. flag burning, trampling or public desecration of national emblems need to be dealt with more rigorously. While simple freedoms are being eroded it does appear that civil disobedience is being tolerated.

I firmly believe that moving away from a strong dynamic central government can only lead to erosion of unity, a clamouring for one up-manship and the childish protest that if I do not get my way, I will leave. Historically, where there has been strong decisive leadership, the rumblings of discontent were controlled, they can never be eradicated, but they can be controlled.

There are enough common values, hopes and interests to bind this great country of Canada together. I firmly believe that the average individual in this country does want a national identity and unity. It is only when the barriers of origin are set aside, common endeavours are sought and national pride developed that such identity can be achieved. As long as democracy remains prevalent, no one will be denied the right to retain their own language or cultural preferences to enjoy in their private lives. To think that they can be foisted onto a total nation is a myth. We will all have to make some sacrifices to gain true nationhood.

Minden rally opposes war in the Gulf

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Braving cold temperatures and downtown traffic from the Sled Dog Derby, a group of about 25 people gathered at the gallery in Minden to hold a rally protesting the possible out-break of war in the Persian Gulf and Canada's involvement. There were speeches given and a silent prayer for peace.

In response to the growing threat of war in the Middle East, a peace rally was held at the Minden cenotaph on Saturday.

About 25 people braved the cold weather and gathered outside the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in public opposition to the aggressive stance of the American-lead coalition that's preparing to face off with Saddam Hussein's Iraqi army.

While condemning Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, the rally participants called for more time to allow economic sanctions to take effect and a peaceful resolution to the Persian Gulf crisis.

"The body bags are on the way to Kuwait, from England, the States and Canada," said Lindsay resident Margaret Stephenson. "It's a chilling thought that they will likely return to their countries of origin all filled."

Stephenson said a war in the gulf could become a major catastrophe killing or wounding hundreds of thousands of people, including Canadians serving in the region.

"Analysts predict that half, or more, of the casualities would be civilians - innocent children, innocent women and men caught in the conflict area," she said. "They will not receive body bags."

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait could turn into a deadly chemical or nuclear confrontation, Stephenson said. "For the world to respond to Hussein's violation of peace and basic international law with brute force, as seems to be occuring, will not solve anything. It will just impose suffering or death upon many, particularly the helpless, young, aged and infirm living in the region."

The rally was organized by Women for Peace, Victoria and Haliburton Counties, as part of the observance of Saturday as a National Day of Action. Groups around the country gathered at similar rallies to show opposition to war in the Gulf.

"Most Canadians do not support this rush of powerful governments towards war," said Stephenson. "Public opinion does make a difference, it has been described as the crucial factor that could stop a dreadful and bloody war."

Beth Zwecher of the Haliburton County Women's Action Committee told the gathering that the crisis in the Gulf underlines the need for greater understanding among the people of the world.

"I hope, in the days and weeks that come, each one of us will make a difference," said Zwecher. "In the future I hope war will not be the only option for solving conflict.

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville said there is a great deal of darkness in the world right now and critized the world's leaders for their response to the crisis.

"The clouds of war are on the horizon," said Drainville. "Those in charged with the responsibility of state are verging of becoming war mongers."

He said the situation in the Gulf has less to do with high moral values and more to do with economics and imperialism as countries like the States move to protect their interest in Middle East oil.

"All I can say, as we stand on the verge of war, is keep the faith, faith that peace will be a reality," said Drainville.

The next speaker was Orillia resident Saul Chernos, the Ontario Notes editor for Peace Magazine. He said the situation in the gulf is the result of years of preparation for war by the world's nations, including Canada.

He said the testing of the American cruise missle in Alberta and the low level military training flights in Labrador are examples of Canada's involvement in the build-up for war. Canada has also contributed to world unrest by selling weapons and Candu nuclear technology to "dubious regimes" like Iraq.

"We have to realize we're at a catalystic apex," said Chernos. "The inevitable has happened."

Although this Tuesday is the deadline imposed by the United Nations for the use of force to remove Iraq's army from Kuwait, Chernos said the escalation to war was started in the weeks leading up to the deadline.

The situation has prompted people to speak out against the prospect of war, said Chernos. "We're seeing people expressing the need to get involved. Not enough people have been involved in the last 10 years."

Marg McGraw, a member of Women For Peace and the organizer of the rally, called war "the ultimate violence against women and children."

She said the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait was criminal but said; "For us to respond with a military build-up is also criminal. Canada must declare its committment to peaceful solutions."

"All we are saying to the government is give peace a chance," said McGraw, paraphrasing a John Lennon song.

At the conclusion of the rally, the participants joined hands in a circle to pray for peace and signed petitions calling for a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Murder victim shot four times in the back

Schwandt visited the site on Tuesday and returned on Wednesday morning with some other people. Harvey's logging equipment was all still at the site and his chainsaw was found lodged, in the on position, in a log.

After the search, the Minden OPP were contacted and Harvey was reported as missing.

It was later that same day that a local trapper, involved in the search, found Harvey's body buried not far from the logging site.

Even though Harvey was known to carry large amounts of cash with him, as much as $500 to more than $1,000, and he was seen carrying his wallet on the day of the murder, police found only 27 cents on the body. There was no sign of his wallet and his pockets showed signs of being disturbed.

An autopsy in Toronto revealed that Harvey had been shot four times with a Winchester 30/30 rifle. Two of the shots, one to the head and one in the lower back, each caused enough damage to have been lethal.

Meinhardt said the first shot struck Harvey in the lower back, passed through his body, exitted just below his rib cage and then hit him in the wrist. The wounds were consistent with Harvey being shot while he operated the chainsaw.

The second and third shots hit Harvey in the back and the fourth shot struck him just behind the right ear, taking out a portion of his forehead. "The damage was massive," said Meinhardt.

A nearby resident told police that at the time of Harvey's death, she heard five shots being fired.

After their investigation, police confronted Morrow and charged him with murder. Morrow, claiming he shot Harvey in self-defense, lead police to a rilfe buried near the murder site. The gun was a Winchester 30/30 that had been owned by Harvey and testing revealed it as the murder weapon.

Clements, Morrow's lawyer, said his client admitted to killing Harvey, but only after Harvey threatened him with the rifle. Clements said Morrow denies stealing Harvey's money.

After the judge accepted Morrow's guilty plea the Crown and defense attorneys made a joint submission asking for a life sentence with no chance of parole for 10 years, the lightest sentence available for second degree murder.

Clements said Morrow had no previous record as an adult.

Judge Clarke accepted the submission, taking into account Morrow's age, his guilty plea and the circumstances of the offense.

"You sir, have taken the life of a fellow human being and you're going to have to live with that for the rest of your life," said Clarke. "You must be cognisant of the fact that the family of the deceased has lost and suffered as well."

By law, Morrow is prohibited from possessing any firearms for a period of five years after his release from prison.

Outside the court, members of Harvey's family said they were happy at the outcome of the trial and expressed surprise at Morrow's guilty plea.

Editorial

The peace rally held this weekend at the cenotaph in Minden is just a small indication of how distasteful the idea of a war in the Persion Gulf is to many Canadians.

Although Iraq's invasion of Kuwait was unquestionably a heinous act, it is hard to justify a response that will result in the death of Canadian troops.

There are countless examples of international agression in the past decade such as the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the American invasion of Panama and the Israeli invasion of Lebanon, yet none of these sparked such a immediate, violent response.

Perhaps the international coalition facing off against Saddam Hussein is really the result of a "new world order" as Canadian External Affairs Minister Joe Clark suggests.

The true test of the United Nation's motives in the Middle East will be the response to the Soviet's armed intervention into Lithuania this past weekend.

It is doubtful that by the end of January the world will see a massive build up of Western troops ready to move into the Baltic states if Soviet troops don't leave Lithuania by a certain deadline.

While the Soviet's actions will most certainly be widely condemned, and there may be some economic sanctions imposed, the truth of matter is, powerful nations don't follow international law -they determine it.

Even more distressing is the fact that while Lithuania is a democracy with a freely-elected government, Kuwait is an autocratic sheikdom with oppressive state control.

This isn't to suggest the world should sit idly by while aggressor nations swallow their neighbours, but there must be a consistent world response that gives adequate opportunity for negotiated peaceful solutions.

One-eyed Roseanne Barrs from Mars invade earth

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

What would you say if I took you over in the corner, put my arm around your shoulder, glanced conspiratorially around to make sure we weren't being overheard, then whispered in your ear "There are alien invaders in our midst?"

You'd start filling out forms for my admittance to the Shady Acres Rest Home for the Cerebrally Unstable, would you not? Any guy talking about alien invaders has gotta be playing goal without a stick.

Nevertheless, I hereby slide my arm around your shoulder like this, and I whisper into the cute little curly blonde hairs in your shell-like ear...

There are alien invaders in our midst!

I can tell you what they look like, too. They've got one big eye, stand anywhere from two to five feet high, they're built kind of boxy — like Roseanne Barr, but smaller — and they like to hang out in the corners of living, rec and rumpus rooms.

They don't precisely wear name tags saying Hi, my name's Reg! — but close. They all bear metal or plastic i.d.'s on their chests. Some of the more common names are Sony, Phillips, Panasonic, Admiral and Hitachi.

Well, sure they're television sets! Disguised as TV sets anyway. What did you expect? Listen, if you were a Venusian intergalactic warlord bent on conquering a foreign planet by infiltration and stealth, what would you do — send down undisguised agents? Wrong. It's tough to crash an earthling Tupperwear Party when you're in a slimy purple jumpsuit and sporting 30 foot tentacles.

Much better to go undercover, disguised as a Westinghouse 24-inch with the works-in-a-drawer.

I'm kidding, but only a little. Sometimes the ubiquity of television does make it seem as if a kind of space fungus has infested our planet and taken over our lives. I don't suppose there was another time in history when you could leave your cave and visit another family cave, only to find the inhabitants sitting in a slack-jawed semicircle around a glowing, blue-grey icon. Remember conversation? Well, forget it. Conversation is dead when the television is on.

Sudden trail change bothers local skier

Editor:

Our family enjoys cross country skiing together and have frequented the Frost Centre over the past few years. This year, we discussed buying a family membership from the Haliburton Nordic Trails Association at the reduced rate. We decided, however, that using the Frost Centre was the best option for us because of the low cost.

On December 31st, I read in the paper that the Frost Centre would now be part of the HNTA and that this was already a 'fait accompli.' I was particularly frustrated by the timing of the announcement which did not allow people time to buy a season's pass at the reduced rate.

I'm sure that many other families will be similarly frustrated by this and feel that the HNTA should at least allow people the reduced rate for a few more weeks.

Objecting to the use of "Noel" contrary to Christmas spirit

Editor:

In response to the letter written by Mr. Pete Stickland in The Times dated January 7, 1991 concerning the sign Noel located in LCBO outlets. I would like to reply to you that is the meaning behind the sign that counts, whether it is in French, English, Italian or Spanish, it represents the spirit of Christmas.

It is obvious that a narrow-minded individual such as yourself has obviously lost this meaning. Merry Christmas to you and have a drink on me.

Gisele Russell,
Minden.

French word for Christmas is acceptable in English language

Editor:

I was amazed to read that Mr. Pete Stickland of Harcourt got worked up about what he took to be the use of (heaven forbid) French at the L.C.B.O.

I found this narrow attitude the more amusing since the dictionary reveals Noel is a perfectly acceptable English word. A noun, stemming from French and Latin, it means Christmas or a Christmas carol and has been used in our poetry and songs for centuries.

Although Mr. Stickland calls himself an Englishman his knowledge of the language is no-hell.

You can run from television, but you can't hide

Which is just about always. And anyway what could you say that could possibly be more interesting than a body slam by The Macho Man or a vowel movement by Vanna White?

You can run from television, but it's mighty hard to hide from it. I've watched Irv Weinstien deliver the Buffalo evening news to my motel room in Morden, Manitoba. I've turned the boob tube on in Yellowknife and found myself gazing at a rush hour traffic report — from Detroit.

Just think — Hunkering down on the treeless barren lands of our north tonight, a family of curious Innu will ponder the infinity of oddities Canadian TV has to offer, from Don Cherry's shirt collars to Barbara Frum's coiffure.

And the invasion is spreading. I got word this week of something called The Checkout Channel. Yes, TV is coming to the checkout lanes of your favourite supermarket. The idea is to catch people waiting in the checkout line — i.e. with nothing much to do and nowhere to go — and flog some products. Defenseless slobs waiting to pay for their Wheaties and Alpo are then subjected to six minutes of news headlines fiendishly laced with commercials.

Will that be the end of it? Not on your channel-changer, chum. A spokesman for the Checkout Channel says with a leer "We're exploring every opportunity ... this is really the wave of the future. You're going to see television everywhere you go."

O, brave wired world. I fear the man is right. I have a copy of the TV listings from a hotel in Jakarta, Indonesia. Want to hear what's on there tonight? Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Wall Street Journal Report, Hit Video USA, The Flintstones. Or, if we were really bored, we could flip on our Jakarta TV and watch ... The Beachcombers.

Alien invaders — they're everywhere! I knew it all along. I always thought Nick's gold neck chains looked suspiciously like a Klingon 2-way radio.

Discovering Queen's Park as a page

by Susan Grober

New members of the provincial NDP government weren't the only novices at Queen's Park when the first session of parliament began in November.

A group of 24 Grade 8 students had their first taste of parliament as well, including 13-year-old Meaghan Obee of Minden.

Meaghan worked as a legislative page for five weeks. The job entailed a fair number of duties to assist MPPs and the Speaker while parliament is in session, including running messages, delivering bills, and retrieving water.

Beforehand, Meaghan was told to memorize all of Ontario's MPPs, along with their parties and ridings. And if this wasn't bad enough, she later learned the memory work was all for nought.

Upon their arrival, the pages learned they had to memorize an entire seating plan of the new Legislative Assembly, which actually wasn't available until three days after they arrived.

"It ended up we never needed to know the ridings," she says. "No one ever said, bring this to the MPP for York South. But we really had to know the cabinets well. Someone would hand over a note and say 'Give this to the Minister of Energy before he sits down.'"

That's quite a bit of pressure for any young person to handle.

"After awhile it gets to be too much... The supervisor was always telling us, you're 24 of Ontario's finest," she adds with a roll of her eyes.

Morning duties included delivering bills to offices of the parliament buildings. And three pages had to count out and organize the papers needed for the day.

"It was 350 groups of them," she remembers with exhaustion. Sometimes as many as 20 papers had to be arranged for each of 350 people. "The clerk's table was 10 feet long, and some days the papers ran along the length of the table."

To follow tradition, pages must wear a uniform of black pants and jacket, with black shoes and socks. The 12 boys wore black ties, and the 12 girls wore velvet jabots.

"We would have rather worn ties, because (the jabots) were very uncomfortable," says Meaghan. "We complained about them forever."

The pages also found it unpleasant to wear the wool suits when the temperature in the House rose to 85 degrees. "You were always sweltering," Meaghan says. "You never undid anything outside of the pages' quarters."

While in the House, buttons always had to be done up, no white cuffs were shown, and hair had to be held back. "So I looked really rejected," she says.

There were other traditions which had to be strictly followed in the House.

For one thing, only water is allowed. Many would use a customary joke on the pages and say "I'll have a Scotch," when requesting a glass of water.

No one in the house can walk between the Speaker and the mace, an ancient weapon carried in by the sergeant-at-arms as a symbol of the Speaker's authority. "If you do, you have to apologize," says Meaghan. "But since the Speaker was new, he didn't even know about it."

Thirteen-year-old Meaghan Obee learned more than she bargained for about the experiences of Ontario's representatives in provincial parliament, such as Victoria-Haliburton MPP Dennis Drainville, when she recently worked as a page at Queen's Park for five weeks.

The pages who sit on the dais near the Speaker must sit on the top step with their feet on a bottom step. Meaghan says this put them in an awkward position, and caused some discomfort.

Now, at least, the pages have cushions to sit on. "They have them because the boys used to wear out their trousers getting up and down."

Also, pages must walk straight-legged. "None of us ever did, but we never got caught for it," she says.

It was pretty difficult having to follow such strict guidelines.

"Some of them were really practical traditions, like that we had to dress neatly. But some of them were really stupid."

Meaghan resented having to perform for the Speaker at a luncheon held before the pages' last day. "We weren't given a choice, we had to do it." But the group certainly managed to break an old Christmas tradition with its humorous version of The 12 Days of Parliament.

In the House, it was all pomp and circumstance for the pages.

When they were in the pages' quarters, however, it was a whole different story. In this hideaway from the House, the pages could relax, and even enjoy such recreational facilities as a ping-pong table.

"You could be normal there," says Meaghan. "You didn't have to be one of 'Ontario's best.' You could just be normal, everyday, 13-year-old children."

Where there ever any problems with this group of 24 teenagers? "A couple of times we had the stereo on too loud," says Meaghan.

> "When we were there no one ever got thrown out of the House. It was kind of disappointing because that would have been a thing to see"

Considering that the Speaker's apartment was directly above their quarters, this could have created a problem. But Meaghan says the pages were usually very well-behaved. "I found the guys were extremely mature."

The pages would spend long hours in the House, with an afternoon running from 1:30 to 6 p.m.

At times it was boring. The address of Lieutenant-Governor Lincoln Alexander to open the first session of parliament was a 17-page speech.

"I was at the very back of the House, behind the Member's Gallery," says Meaghan. "I stared at a wall for the whole time."

Other things were more exciting, like the time one observer started yelling down to the legislative assembly, throwing down papers and saying "Read it for yourself." The pages had to collect the papers, which the MPPs then passed around.

And, although there was quite a bit of yelling during Question Period, Meaghan was always hoping for a little more action.

"When we were there, no one ever got thrown out of the House," says Meaghan. "It was kind of disappointing, because I wanted someone to get thrown out. That would have been a thing to see."

The pages were also involved in their fair share of jokes with the MPPs. One day, red food colouring was added to the water, recalls Meaghan.

"Robert Nixon asked this one page for a glass of water. And he took Robert Nixon a glass of red water. And he actually drank it. I couldn't believe it. I wouldn't drink water with food colouring in it."

Another time, an MPP asked for water while he was speaking. So another MPP suggested the pages bring him 10 glasses, and the pages complied. "He was good humoured. All of them were really funny, except for one really serious MPP."

There were some moments of leisure, including trips to the Skydome and Royal Ontario Museum. The pages also enjoyed a pizza party arranged by their supervisors.

"For all of us, they ordered stacks and stacks and stacks of pizza," Meaghan says, eyes widening as she remembers the sight. "And we ate it all. That was the amazing part.

"But I don't think they actually treated us," she adds. "I think the Ontario government treated us."

Pages are paid $15 a day, and $11 extra for overtime.

Still, just because they worked didn't mean they missed out on school. Classes were held Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 3:30 to 6 p.m. "And legislative process we had all the time," says Meaghan.

Meaghan really managed to get into the swing of things over the five-week period.

Although it was a little intimidating to deal with all the politicians at first. Particularly with Premier Bob Rae and the lieutenant-governor.

"We spent half an hour with Bob Rae, and we were actually in casual clothes," says Meaghan.

Meaghan sees Lincoln Alexander as "the most important person in Ontario. He's the Queen. Or at least he does the Queen's duties."

"Mostly, everyone was like fathers and mothers," she says. "They're all normal.

"At the beginning it was like, 'Oh, an MPP,'" she says with mock reverence. "Now it's just, 'So what? They're just a person.'"

Of course, it really helped that the pages weren't the only ones who were not accustomed to parliamentary procedures. "Everyone was new, except for the clerks and the lieutenant-governor."

And now it's all old hat, for pages and politicians alike.

Man goes to jail for frightening teenagers

In the courts

The following cases were heard by Judge George Inrig last Wednesday in provincial court in Minden. Rick Bagg acted as Crown Attorney.

Man gets 12 month sentence

A 23-year-old man was sentenced to 12 months in jail for a series of charges, including one for putting a rifle in his mouth and pulling the trigger in the presence of two young girls.

In February 1987, Gary Clinton Mitton entered a house where a pair of teenage girls were babysitting three children aged three years, two years, and six months.

Court was told he was seen handling a .22 calibre rifle and box of ammunition after entering the house. Later in the kitchen, the babysitters watched as Mitton put the rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

"It would appear to be not a serious suicide attempt," said defence lawyer Karen Johnston, adding that Mitton was also seen handling a blunt knife.

Johnston said a doctor has diagnosed Mitton as having borderline hypertension.

In January 1987, Mitton was charged for stealing syringes and needles from a hospital in January 1987.

Also, in March 1987, he was charged with failing to appear in court and failing to comply with bail conditions. In January 1989, he was charged with failing to appear in court. And there are three breach of probation charges against him.

Mitton also received a suspended sentence after pleading guilty to common assault in a domestic dispute, for hitting his wife in the jaw on December 1.

Judge Inrig put Mitton on one year probation, and ordered him to take counselling for anger management, family violence, and alcoholism. An additional charge of uttering death threats was withdrawn.

Mitton will serve his sentence at Maplehurst in Oakville, where his family lives and where he can receive schooling.

Door damaged during altercation

Richard H.M. Burke of McClintock Township pleaded guilty to mischief under $1,000.

On December 4, the 33-year-old man cut the knuckles on his right hand after punching in the window of a door, and damaging the door jam.

Court was told Burke became intoxicated that night, and wanted to fight with his sister's husband. "He was upset, and wouldn't settle down," said the Crown Attorney.

After he was arrested, Burke was treated at Huntsville Hospital and then lodged in the cells at the OPP station.

"I found out my brother-in-law took after my sister," Burke said to explain why he was angry that night.

Local snowmobilers victims of unsafe ice conditions

Police briefs

During the week of January 1 - 6 officers of the Minden Detachment investigated 45 general occurrences, 21 auto accidents with 3 injured and 2 snowmobile accidents with 1 person injured and 1 person killed.

Unsafe ice conditions

The ice conditions for Haliburton County are still unsafe for snowmobile travel. At least 14 people have experienced the icy chill of winter water this past weekend, and as a result one person died. On Saturday, January 5 one person went through the ice on Pine Lake. At about 8:45 a.m. the same day three more went through in the same area as did two more about 1:00 a.m. January 6. Two people on one machine went through Horseshoe Lake on Saturday, two through Little Redstone and one person went through the ice on Dark Lake.

At approximately 11:30 p.m. Saturday, January 5, while travelling on Lake Kashagawigamog, Joel Molnar and a friend crossed open water. Molnar's machine sank and he drowned, the other person made it safely across. Molnar, 22-years-old was from Markham, Ontario.

The lakes and rivers of Haliburton County are still not safe for snow vehicle travel.

Fail to appear

Kathleen Holmes, 41, of the Tory Hill area has been charged with failing to appear after failing to show for court in Lindsay on Friday, January 4. Holmes who has used numerous names such as Kathleen Osborne, Kathleen Osborne-Holmes, Cathy Woods and Kassie Osborne was convicted on December 24, 1990 of several criminal offences, and put over to January 4 for sentencing. She is convicted of false pretences, 8 counts, forgery 11 counts, fraud, 9 counts, theft over, breach of undertaking, perjury and fabricating evidence, 5 counts.

A warrant is held by police for the arrest of Kathleen Holmes, anyone with information as to her whereabouts should contact police immediately.

Injury accident

A passenger was injured when a snow vehicle operated by Candice Kennedy, 17, of Eagle Lake struck a guide rail. The throttle stuck open and Jennifer Lewis, 17, of Dysart Township was thrown off the machine and taken to hospital.

Probation ordered for man who punched door

"I did do it, with remourse," Burke told the judge, adding that his offer to help fix the door jam was turned down.

Judge Inrig fined Burke $150 plus a $35 surcharge, and ordered him to pay $200 restitution for the damages. Burke was put on probation for one year.

Judge strikes guilty plea

Michael Rowden pleaded guilty to breach of probation after he failed to attend counselling as arranged by a probation officer.

Rowden, 18, was required to receive counselling through Kinark as part of a probation order, but according to Crown Attorney Rick Bagg he missed three of six arranged sessions.

Rowden told the court he missed only two sessions after receiving a form from Kinark's director at the time, Andre Breton, saying he was released from the service.

"If you received a form, then you couldn't have been in breach," Judge Inrig advised Rowden. "You should have pleaded not guilty."

The judge struck the plea of guilty, and adjourned the matter for trial on February 13.

Accused must prove health problem

A woman must give proof from her doctor that she was unable to provide a breath sample on an Alert machine because of a medical problem which affects her breathing.

On November 24, Muriel M. Doiron was stopped by police after her car went into a ditch off Harmony Road in Haliburton.

The 43-year-old woman told police she lost control of the vehicle while avoiding an oncoming car. "She appeared to be in proper condition at that time, and was released," said Crown Attorney Rick Bagg.

Later that night, two police officers came upon Doiron as she walked down the centre of the road in Stanhope Township. She mentioned the ditch incident, and alcohol was noted on her breath.

Court was told Doiron refused to blow into the Alert machine, an instrument used as a roadside test to determine whether a person has been drinking. Doiron said this wasn't true.

"I didn't ever refuse. I tried over and over," she said. "Apparently, I have something wrong with my lungs from smoking too much."

Doiron said she has been tested by a doctor, but won't receive a final test until the end of the month.

Judge Inrig struck Doiron's plea of guilty to the charge, and told her to return once she has a doctor's report.

Impaired charges dismissed

Charges of impaired driving and breach of probation against Eric Larry Cormier were dismissed because of unreasonable delay.

The 35-year-old man was charged for the occurrence on March 24 in Dysart Township.

His lawyer told the court the delay of more than nine months for trial infringed Cormier's rights in accordance with the Charter.

Eavesdropping charges withdrawn

A Minden man charged with eavesdropping on a telephone line awaits sentencing after pleading guilty to related charges.

Ronald Shane McKelvey, 32, pleaded guilty to a charge of distributing material collected by crime, and two charges of breach of recognizance in provincial court in Lindsay on January 4.

An additional charge of interception of private communications was withdrawn.

McKelvey was accused of using a device to listen in on a telephone line, taping conversations, and allowing another person to hear the tape.

McKelvey will be sentenced on March 8 in Lindsay.

Destroyed mill will be rebuilt, says owner

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Despite the loss of the Harcourt Lumber saw mill in a massive blaze, the mill's owner says he intends to rebuild the operation.

The fire, which broke out late last Monday night and continued to burn until morning, caused an estimated $2 million damage and completely destroyed the main building.

The destruction of the mill happened on the first day of operations in over a year after the former owner, Martin Lumber, closed the facility down and sold it to Frank Yantha.

In an interview last week, Yantha told The Times that 18 workers had been recalled to the mill to begin operating the saws and that he had hoped to start using the dry kilns next week.

The mill was covered by insurance and Yantha said he's planning to rebuild as soon as weather permits.

Monmouth fire chief Ralph Watson said the fire was reported by a local resident at about 11:30 pm Monday night, and by the time fire crews arrived at the scene 25 minutes later, the building was fully engulfed by flames.

The 30 firemen from Monmouth and Cardiff fire departments battled the flames until about 8 am Tuesday morning. Watson said efforts were hampered by cold weather that froze pumps and nozzles.

"We had to thaw the nozzles out and we had to thaw the men out," said Watson. Crews had to chop through six inches of ice to draw water from a river running by the mill.

"The main building was pretty well done for by the time we got there," said Watson. "But we managed to save the maintenence shop at the front and a board way at the back." He said the heat from the flames was so intense it twisted the steel beams in the building's frame.

The fire crews returned to the scene late Tuesday afternoon to wet down some hot spots and try and prevent the fire flaring up.

The Fire Marshal's Office has been called in to conduct an investigation into the blaze and Watson said such an investigation is mandatory after any fire which causes more than $400,000 damage. He said there is no reason to suspect that arson may have been the cause of the blaze.

Watson was with David Marcellus of the Fire Marshal's Office on Friday to look over the wreakage at the mill. This week heavy equipment will be brought in to begin clearing some of the debris so investigators can get a closer look.

Yantha said the building was equipped with a sprinkler system, but it's not yet been determined whether or not the system came on during the fire.

The cause of the blaze is still unknown.

Mushers come to Minden for sled dog derby

The people of Minden must surely have prayed hard for snow at the seventh running of the Minden Sled Dog Derby.

Maybe a little too hard.

The heavy snowfall Friday had a major impact on the racers, cutting sharply into their Saturday performances.

While times normally improve slightly or remain constant from the first day to the second for the top racers, this weekend saw almost a minute difference between leading eight-dog times from Saturday to Sunday.

The same was true of the four dog times, which showed a marked improvement from Saturday to Sunday. Cold, clear weather on Saturday night helped to firm the trail and give the dogs and mushers better traction.

Terri Killam, of Northboro, Mass. took first-place in the eight-dog races, earning $3,100 in prize money with a time of 53:53.50.

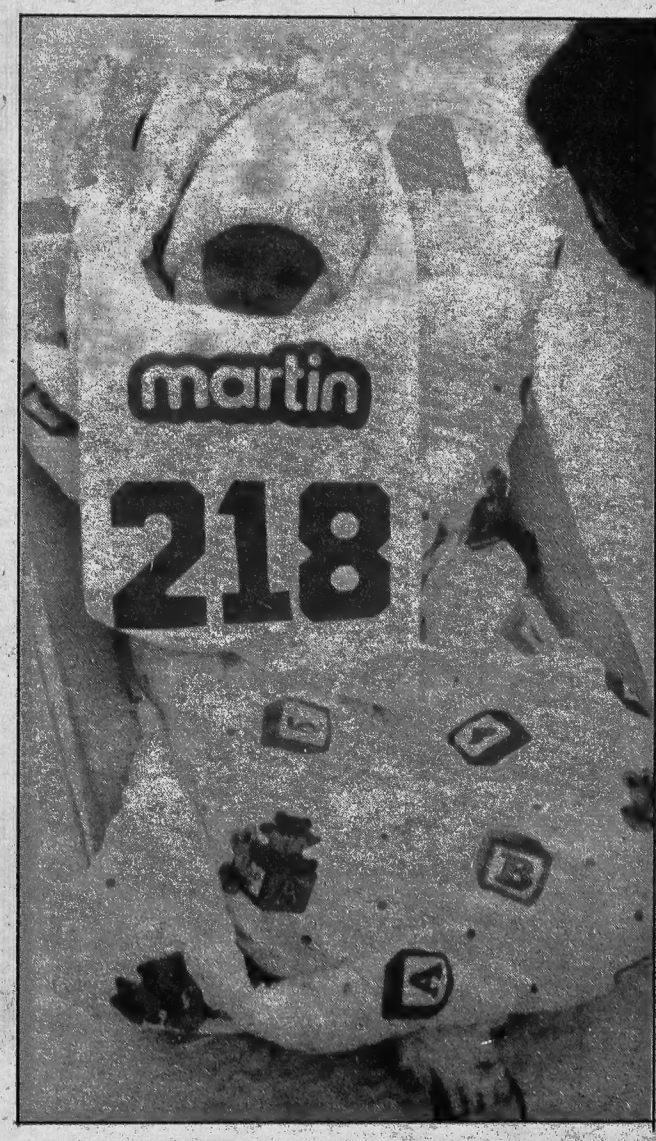
Killam repeated her win of three years ago, with a time which includes eight-mile heats on both Saturday and Sunday. She also placed second in the four-dog division with a time of 35:43.04.

Stuart Osthoff, of Ely, Minn., certainly improved his showing in the four-dog races. Where last year Osthoff placed third, he managed to come ahead with a first place win over four miles at 34:27.38, earning $1,600 in prize money. He placed 6th over-all in the eight-dog division, with a time of 58:00.50.

Other top finishers include Ross Saunderson, of Charlie Lake, B.C., who came in second in the eight-dog event. And Richard Therrien, of St. Emile, Que., who took third spot. Lou Serre, of Hanmer, Ont., came in third.

Minden's own Steve and Val Lougheed slowed down a bit since last year's race. Steve came in 19th place out of 29 teams in the eight-dog race, with a combined time of 1:00:38.55. And Val placed 22nd out of 32 competing in the four-dog race with a combined time of 40:27.85.

Whit Hicks had a good excuse for placing last in the eight-dog race. This was not only the Boalsburg, Tenn. resident's first race — it was his first race on snow.



Mush!

This year's race sees fewer teams but enthusiasm remains constant

There were fewer participants in this year's event, but that didn't stop onlookers from enjoying the races.

Minden resident Julie Petch brought her sons David, 4, and Jonathon, 2, into town to watch the event.

"We're just new in the area, and this is our first time here," said Petch, who feels the event is a good way to bring together the people of the community.

"I love it. I think it's great," she said. "The kid and mutt race was just fantastic."

Harry Lovdal and his wife, Rhoda, helped out at St. Paul's Anglican Church serving lunch to the hungry masses. But they also took time out to watch the races and look at the dogs.

"We always come over and watch it for awhile," he said. "I wouldn't miss it, because I'm from the Yukon."

As a matter of fact, Lovdal had a dog and sled of his own in the Yukon, but he never entered a competition.

"We like seeing all the dogs, and the excitement of it all," he said. "I especially like to watch when they come back. They're all excited when they go out, and dragging when they come back."

The couple were a little disappointed at the turnout on Saturday, and blamed poor weather conditions on preventing some people from coming out. But they still had faith. "There will be more tomorrow," said Mrs. Lovdal.

The Minden Techni-cal Challenge Sled Dog Derby is sponsored by Martin Pet Foods of Elmira, who provided the $25,100 purse.

Derby posters add colour to event

Once again this year, the students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School created a colourful selection of posters to illustrate the annual sled dog derby.

The posters went on display in area business windows last week and remained on display throughout the derby weekend. While the sled dog derby committee selected three posters at each grade level for special recognition, race governor Val Lougheed said all the youngsters who contributed were winners. "It was obvious from the selection of posters that the children really put their hearts into their work. All the posters will add to the colour and fun of the race," she said.

From all the entries received, one was selected as the most interesting. Grade four student Lisa Cowen won that special honour. In addition to her prize, she was granted a spot in the kid & mutt race with sled and dog provided from the Lougheed Kennels.

The winners, in order of placing, as selected by the panel of judges include:

Kindergarten: Brady Clark, Robert Steven, Jessica Bacon.

Grade One: Simon Moll, Shayne Watson, Matthew Kenney.

Grade Two: Jeremy Johnson, Adam Goard, James Kernohan.

Grade Three: Sara Bath, Justin Murray, Katie Woods.

Grade Four: Lisa Cowen, Shelly Hirstwood, Jennifer Ferguson.

Grade Five: Lisa Reinwald, Greg Simmons, Lindsey Sala.

Grade Six: Michael Simmon, Amber-Lee Cully, Katie Ackerblade.

Grade Seven: Andrew McKelvey, Sarah Nash, Kurt Dehaan.

Grade Eight: Cassie Weyrich.

Minden Tri-County Pee Wees beat Haliburton Huskies 5-1

Minden Tri County Pee Wees played in Haliburton Friday night, January 4th and came away with a 5 - 1 win. The Monarchs however, appeared to have had too much turkey over the holidays, and were not their usual best, far from it, and the score flattered them. Give Haliburton credit, they played a far better game this time out.

Minden opened the scoring at 9:11 of the first period when Arron Belton scored unassisted.

In the second period Benji Crego scored at 5:59 on a pass from Arron Belton to make it 2 - 0 for Minden. The third period saw three more goals by Minden as they opened up a little. Todd Redgrave scored assisted by Tommy Neville at 9:33. Eighteen seconds later Arron Belton scored from Andrew Crego and Todd Redgrave.

On a nice three-way passing play Terry King was steady in goal and had his shutout spoiled when Haliburton scored their lone goal at 6:54.

Arron Belton scored his third, for his hat trick, with 1:04 remaining in the game. Marty Dettman and Andrew Nesbitt drew the assists. Minden's passing attack was nearly non existent and the team had better get its act together, before the playoffs if they hope to survive the competition. And the penalties. Far too many and stupid and unnecessary most of the time, certainly doesn't help their game.

Woodville defeated Minden 3 - 0 Monday evening January 7th in a Tri County Pee Wee game played at Woodville.

It was a close checking affair with Minden being unable to capitalize on their chances around the Woodville net.

While Minden reduced their time in the sin bin, they also were not aggressive enough.

It was 2 - 0 for Woodville at the end of the first period and the second period was scoreless. Woodville scored a disputed goal late in the third period with the officials out to lunch on this call. The puck never did enter the net. However, we will definitely give the Referee the assist. The loss for Minden, all but assured Woodville of closing out the regular season with the leagues leading points, and the division regular league title.

Minden hosts the league's leading Woodville team at the Minden Arena at 8 p.m. Tuesday, January 15th, which should be a thriller.

Home fighting to keep ahead of Sid Stamp

With just four weeks left in regular season play, Home Hardware is fighting to stay on top in the Minden Mens' Hockey League.

The team managed to retain its three point lead over Sid Stamp by beating up on Hartwick Construction 12-2 on Jan. 7.

Home came out quickly the first three goals in the first period, with Ben Manuge netting the first two points and Jeff Stamp scoring what would turn out to be the game-winner.

Hartwick's Kevin Mills managed to put his team on the board to open the second frame, but Home players Barry Boice and Ed Gibbons added two more of their own.

Wayne Dickenson hit the twine at the end of the second period with Hartwick's only other goal of the evening, making the score 5-2 going into the third period.

From then on in, it was all Home Hardware as the team added seven more goals in the third period. Contributing to the bombardment were Brian Marquette, Boice, Gibbons with his second and third

Minden skaters win gold at Uxbridge artistic event

Two of the Minden Skaters competed in the Second Annual Sectional Artisic Event which was held at the Uxbridge Arena.

Artistic skating is a form of skating with the emphasis on skaters' abilities to interpret music, rather than their technical prowess.

Lisa Carr competed in the Bronze B and Janene Garbutt in Bronze A events. Both skaters did an impressive artistic program earning first in their categories.

This artistic competing is new to the skating field but is becoming very popular and is enjoyable to watch.

The Minden Club congratulates Lisa and Janene for putting our name on the top.

Thin ice on lakes still a danger

by Susan Grober

Don't let a few cold days fool you — most of the lakes still aren't safe for snowmobiling.

Last weekend, 14 people went through the ice on snowmobiles, and one drowned.

Saturday night, Joel Molnar and a friend were traveling across the ice on Lake Kashagawigamog when they crossed open water. The 22-year-old Markham resident drowned after his machine sank.

Over the course of the weekend, six people went through the same area of Pine Lake in three separate incidents. On Saturday, two people sharing a machine went through Horseshoe Lake, two went through Little Redstone, and one through Dark Lake.

"They're still not good," Constable Mike Maybee says of ice conditions. "We need more cold weather. I wouldn't suggest lake travel just yet."

This message is echoed by Conservation Officer Dave Ferguson of the Minden district Ministry of Natural Resources.

"Because ice conditions are so variable, it's not like leaving the dog dish out overnight and the water freezes up," he says. Factors such as streams flowing into a lake can determine whether the ice is safe to travel over.

Ferguson has been snowmobiling on lakes for 20 years with the ministry, and has been forced to turn back on many lakes this year because of unsafe conditions.

"Lakes where snowmobile trails have traditionally been have higher flow rates right now because of recent rains," says Ferguson.

"Until we get some more cold weather, things are not going to be stable."

Ferguson says owners of some modern snowmobiles can actually speed over areas of slush and open water. "But if they stop for a smoke or a drink, there could be thin ice and they could just go under."

Last year, the cold weather started in late November, providing fairly good ice conditions on the lakes. This year, however, the weather didn't get cold until late December.

"You need minus 30 degree weather for a week or more for the ice to build up," says Ferguson, adding that heavy rains last month interrupted the normal flow patterns of many lakes.

"Even the cold weather has been interspersed with mild periods," he says.

During the day, there are indications of thin ice such as patches of slush. "Until that freezes over, the ice may become too thin to bear (the weight of snowmobiles)."

Ferguson says an area should be safe once four inches or more of ice has built up.

Recent snowfalls have created problems on the lakes. The ice becomes weighed down with slush, and gradually deteriorates because it is under water.

Ferguson offers the following precautions for snowmobilers: use organized trails away from open water; stick to heavily used trails that exist on larger lakes; keep off unfamiliar lakes; and stay away from lakes altogether at night.

"Even people familiar with the lake can run into trouble at night because of changed water flow problems," he says.

If you insist on snowmobiling over water, stick to an area such as a creek where you'll only end up knee-deep if the machine breaks through the ice, Ferguson adds.

Winter fisherman usually know the safe spots on a lake because they drill down into the ice before setting out their huts. On many area lakes this year, such fish huts are scarce because of warm weather and unsafe conditions.

Huskies post 11-0 win

by Lisa Bagshaw

On Tuesday, January 8 the Minden OMHA Pee Wee team travelled to Haliburton for an evening game.

The play went from one end of the ice to the other for most of the first period, but it was Haliburton who opened the scoring with only one minute left in the first.

Haliburton continued to play well scoring ten more goals throughout the remainder of the game, making the final score 11-0.

On the following Thursday, Minden travelled to Little Britain who opened the scoring halfway through the first period and managed to slip two more by Minden in the first.

In the second period, Minden's Jeff Wray slammed the puck into the opponent's net on a pass from Aaron Tomlinson. However, Little Britain scored five more goals in the second and third periods making the final score 8-1.

Stanhope wants study of tax changes

"I will personally devote my time and energy, and will encourage others to do likewise, during the next election to defeat County reeves who would be so short-sighted as to ignore the wishes of their constituents on this critical issue," Gump said in his letter. "Lakefront property owners can not be treated as second-class citizens, and the reeves cannot take action at this time of year, with no input from the majority of property owners, to introduce something as controversial as market value assessment."

Changing the tax system to "squeeze" more out of lakefront property owners would be like "killing the golden goose," he said.

The Boshkung Lake association is circulating a flyer claiming re-assessment will raise some property taxes by as much as $1,000 a year and asking residents to lobby county council to vote against the change.

Although Stanhope council opposed the new tax system, they resented the threatening tone of Gump's letter.

"I would like to remind Mr. Gump that we don't take to threats...I don't like being intimidated," said Barker. "We're not going to to kowtow to those kinds of letters, we'll do what's best for the community."

Council also received letters from resident Alex Stevenson and the Hawk and Halls Lake Property Owners Association expressing opposition to market value re-assessment at this time.

At the end of the discussion, council unanimously endorsed a resolution asking that the re-assessment be delayed.

Churches agree to share building in Highland Grove and Gooderham

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The United Church and the Reform Church have reached an agreement allowing both congregations use of church buildings in Gooderham and Highland Grove.

The arrangement, which was worked out during a meeting between the two groups in early January, specifies the times that each congregation will have access to the churches.

The deal was finalized last Wednesday when the executive of the Lindsay Presbytery of the United Church of Canada voted to accept it.

"We're quite happy with the arrangement," said Maurice Bradley, the former United Church lay minister who is now serving as the minister for the newly-formed Reform Church congregation.

Bradley said the two churches have also agreed to equally share the cost of upkeep for the two buildings.

The dispute over control of the churches in Highland Grove and Gooderham began after a group of United Church members, including Bradley, quit in order to join the Reform Church.

The decision to leave was based primarily on a difference of opinion over the United Church's stand on the ordination of practacing homosexuals.

After the split, both congregations laid claim to the buildings and each church installed its own set of locks on the doors.

After the success of negotiations on Jan. 3, both sides now believe the two congregations will be able to peacefully co-exist in the communities.

"They've provided us with keys to the front door," said Bradley. "We don't have to use the back door anymore."

Furthering the spirit of co-operation the United Church has struck a special committee to oversee the transfer of membership from the United Church to the Reform Church for those people wishing to switch.

Bradley said the Reform Church members are extremely pleased that the United Church has taken this action to facilitate membership transfers. He called the move unusual and said it's the first he's heard of such an arrangement anywhere in Canada.

"It proves that once we were able to sit down and negotiate we could solve our differences," said Bradley. "We're overjoyed at that."

Minden says it can't afford to repair Bobcaygeon Rd. bumps

by Susan Grober

Minden council says the township just can't afford to smooth out the bumps on Bobcaygeon Road.

Last Thursday, resident Keith Oitment presented council with requests to improve a stretch of Bobcaygeon Road from Prentice Street to the Scotch Line.

Oitment asked that council budget for repair of the road bed and complete resurfacing of the road this year. "It's disgraceful the way it's been looked after."

He also complained about a lack of winter maintenance. "Would you explain why slipper conditions are so prevalent, and what you intend to do about it?"

Holes in the road have been filled with sand, which Oitment feels is only a Band-aid solution. "What's going to happen in spring when the road thaws? That road is going to go all to hell."

Reeve Ray Moore reminded Oitment there are a number of roads in the municipality which require attention.

"There's 51 homes on that piece of road," argued Oitment.

Moore said those residents could take part in a local improvement project where 66 per cent must agree to pay a share of the repairs. The money could be added to the residents' tax bills over a period of time.

Moore added that a great deal of money has already been spent on Bobcaygeon Road. Since 1987, $1.3 million has been spent north of the bridge, while only $495,000 has been spent on roads in the rest of the township, he said.

"The only improvement has been insulation of storm sewers, which is the instigator of the problem as far as I can see," said Oitment. "That road has been torn up and patched so many times..."

Moore said council will continue to lobby the Ministry of Transportation for road funding. "The Bobcaygeon Road is our main street north — it's our main thoroughfare."

Last year, council requested funding to complete the development road to the Scotch Line, said Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry. "They said no, but gave us money for storm sewers and gutters."

Councillor Bob Sisson said the municipality's resources are limited. "For every tax dollar you pay, we get 30 per cent, and the school board and county

Former taxi driver convicted for trying to buy sex from passengers

A former Haliburton taxi driver has been convicted for asking female clients to have sex for money.

Raymond D. Shaw, 40, pleaded guilty to communication for the purpose of prostitution before Provincial Court Judge George Inrig in Lindsay last Thursday.

Court was told it was a common occurrence for Shaw to offer money for sex from female passengers when he drove for Erik's Taxi in Haliburton. The charge was laid after police investigated a complaint made last January.

Judge Inrig fined the man $500, and put him on two years probation.

Shaw was also convicted of a mischief charge and fined $200 for interfering with rights to property.

On February 12 at 4 a.m., Shaw knocked on the door of a Haliburton residence while intoxicated and refused to leave.

Shaw had followed his common-law wife, Alice J. Shaw, to the residence. And a related incident involving the 42-year-old woman later brought police to that same house.

The woman phoned the OPP communications centre a little after 4 a.m., gave a false name and address, and claimed someone was trying to break into the house.

Upon investigation, police learned the incident was "totally fictitious," says Constable Al Bibby.

Because all calls received at the communications centre are tape-recorded, Bibby was later able to identify Shaw after recognizing her voice.

She was convicted of public mischief for reporting the offence, fined $250, and put on two years probation.

Additional charges of personation, a 14-year indictable offence, and mischief to property were withdrawn.

Convicted man wanted by OPP

Police have a warrant for the arrest of a Haliburton man who breached a recent probation order for charges of carrying a knife in a public place and threatening to kill himself.

On January 2, Lorne Cummings received a suspended sentence and was put on one year's probation for carrying a knife for a purpose dangerious to the public.

The charge was laid in November, after Cummings brandished a knife at the Haliburton Post Office, Guardian Drugs, and at his doctor's office, saying he would use the weapon to kill himself in a Satanic mass at midnight.

As part of the probation order, Judge George Inrig ordered Cummings to stay at a residence where his landlady would ensure he takes medication to treat his paranoid schizophrenia.

However, a probation officer has learned that Cummings hasn't been residing at the home.

"If we find him today, he'll go to a bail hearing on Monday," OPP Constable Mike Maybee told The Times on Friday.

Because Cummings had received a suspended sentence for the charge, there is a possibility he could still be sentenced.

Council says road repairs are too costly gets the rest. We don't have 100 per cent of your tax dollars to work with."

"You've got the staff and equipment," said Oitment. "Why does it cost so much to fix those holes?"

"Roads is our biggest budget — we have major expenditures," said Moore, adding that the roads department is busy looking after a number of projects in the municipality.

"I think you're really passing the buck," said Oitment. "I don't think we're getting a fair shake of it, to be honest with you."

Oitment said residents are tired of constantly maintaining their vehicles, which sustain a bumpy ride over the many large potholes on the road. He said one person recently had a repair bill over $1,000 to repair a vehicle.

"What about insurance for car repairs?" asked Oitment.

"You run the risk when you drive the road," said Moore.

Later, Oitment argued this point because the township is insured to compensate legitimate cases. But getting compensation isn't as easy as just handing in a bill for repairs.

Brent Clarkson, manager of Ian R. Pepper Insurance Adjusters, has investigated a couple of hundred claims in the county over the last 12 years.

"Some have been denied, some have been paid," he told The Times on Friday.

If a person feels they have a claim, by law they have 10 days to give notice to the township, which in turn contacts the insurance company to do an investigation.

"We decide if the township has been negligent," said Clarkson. But there are a number of considerations before this can be determined.

Clarkson said there is some onus on the driver to avoid driving over potholes, and to drive safely in poor weather conditions. "It's not really a cut and dried process... It's really complicated."

Variables to consider include weather conditions. The law requires the municipality to clear the road within a number of hours, and there are no laws requiring sanding of roads. "That's a freebie," said Clarkson.

Also, the status of the road according to provincial statute laws must be considered, he said.

Municipal roads are the lowest standard, below county roads and provincial highways.

"The municipality is at the bottom of the list, as far as funding goes," said Clarkson.

New shows at Rails' End Gallery

The following shows are being presented at the Rails' End Gallery in Haliburton Village.

Weird Knits by Russell O'Brien,
January 12 - February 9, 1991.

Russell O'Brien, a graduate of the Ontario College of Art, is focused upon Canada; it's geographic and cultural heritage. It is this interest which influences Russell in his design sense, his statements and his use of varied knitting techniques for expression of his thoughts and ideas. The combination of this focus and Russell's constant, dry sense of humour, results in "non-forced" completed works in the guise of clothing, afghans and games. Weird Knits presents a new twist on the purpose and meaning of knitting.

Cloths of Colour by Margaret Stephenson Coole, Dyan Jones & Judith Tinkl,
January 12 - February 9, 1991.

Cloths of Colour is an exhibition of quilts created by three Ontario artists. The quilts in the exhibition are contemporary works in that their design, colours, techniques and 'stories' are of today's world; influenced by politics, fashion and the ever-pressing development and exploration of quilting/textile techniques.

The Haliburton Highlands Museum is also having an exhibition of quilts, however, these quilts are those created within the past century in Haliburton County.

Make time this month to tour both exhibitions ... supporting both organizations! Gallery and Museum hours are Tuesday to Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information, please call the Rails' End Gallery at 705-457-2330.

The Rails' End Gallery is a non-profit public art gallery, housed in a renovated CN station, located in the Village of Haliburton.

Residents see video about Dr. Agnes Jamieson, enjoy take-out lunch

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

A happy and prosperous New Year to all.

The day after Christmas was Boxing Day, and the residents appreciated a quiet time. In the afternoon we were shown a video of the Minden Museum, and one of the life of Dr. Jamieson. It was shown in the main lounge. Many of the residents really enjoyed seeing them. They thank all those who made it possible for them to see the video.

Thursday for a little variation in our routine each resident decided what they would like from General Lee's, and our wishes were phoned in. Our orders were picked up and delivered to us in the auditorium by Mary Guillemin who we thank very much. Volunteers to help serve us the lunch were Pearl Lyle's granddaughter, Carrol Francis and her great granddaughter, Cari. Cari goes to Girl Guides, and the requirements to get another badge are to help with serving food somewhere, so she chose helping here.

Friday, December 28 was Happy Hour. Bill Payne - guitar and sang; Eldon Deacon - singing and guitar, Charlie Hadley - steel guitar, Bill Moore and Doris on piano. The volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemin, and Bonnie Fullan looked after the residents wishes during Happy Hour. The residents and friends thank both the musicians and volunteers.

Sunday evening chapel service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess, and Alice Jones played the organ. There was a good turn out at the service. Please accept our thanks to you both.

Monday morning we had our fitness program, and in the afternoon we had a sing-song led by Grace Coburn, and Doris on the piano. After visiting with friends, George Hewitt joined in the singing. We thank everyone who took part.

Thursday was Tea Party time. The lunch was brought by the Minden Legion Ladies. The lunch was lovely and was served by Jean Marsh, Bea James, Alice Clark, Gwen Cox and a gentleman Hugh Marwell. We thank the ladies and Hugh for making this afternoon so pleasant.

In the evening Marg Prentice came so we could have a nice evening. Thank you Marg.

Llyn Shirley thanks John and Bob of Hart Lodge for the use of their chafing dishes. They made the serving much easier.

Friday was time for Happy Hour. The entertainment was provided by Lloyd Madill, Don Alton, and Norm Graham with Doris on piano. Volunteers for tending the tables etc. were Mary Guillemin, Bonnie Fullan, and Don Holden. The residents thank them and hope they come again.

Congratulations to Alice Todd on her birthday January 9.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Environment also at risk because of wars' destruction

Reflections
by David Suzuki

Wars are generally reported from the standpoint of the combatants, generals or politicians. But the real casualties of any war go unreported — they are the land and all of the life it supports, including humans.

The most vulnerable people in a battle are often the indigenous people in a combat zone. Yet they possess knowledge about the plants and animals of the area that is vital for reconstructing the ecosystem after the war ends. Scientists will never duplicate this kind of information.

As we become increasingly concerned about global environmental degradation and search for ways to live sustainably into the future, this kind of native wisdom becomes all the more precious. That is why many environmentalists have become involved in helping aboriginal people in Canada and elsewhere to protect their culture and their land.

While External Affairs Minister Joe Clark flexes his rhetorical muscles in indignation over the Iraqi occupation over Kuwait (where was he when Iraq killed 10,000 Kurds with chemical weapons?), he ignores the terrible plight of tribal people in East Timor Indonesia, the Penan in Malaysia and the Miskito in Nicargua. They are disempowered like many aboriginal people in Canada and therefore invisible in the political arena.

The largest tropical rain forest in Central America is in Nicaragua and like comparable ecosystems around the world, it supports a profusion of life forms about which we know little. While the prolonged civil war between the Sandinistas and Contras was extensively reported, there has been far less publicity on the plight of 180,000 Miskito Indians who live on the Atlantic Coast of Nicaragua (there are also 15,000 Sumu and 1,000 Rama people in the area).

The Miskitos were contacted by Europeans soon after Columbus came to the Americas but have been able to live traditionally because of their isolation from the populated areas.

The territory of the Miskito people extends across the land that was divided into Nicaragua and Honduras. Until 10 years ago, they were entirely self sufficient, living by hunting, fishing and agriculture. When the civil war began in Nicaragua, they found themselves caught between the two contending forces.

In an effort to secure a land base, the Sandinistas destroyed 25 Miskito villages on the Honduras-Nicaragua border, burning the houses and fruit orchards and killing the livestock. People from over 50 other villages were forcibly relocated in refugee camps. Some 40,000 refugees fled to live with their Miskito relatives in Honduras while over 2,000 were killed.

The Miskitos were also attacked by Contras who were trying to establish a foothold on the east coast.

Village devastated by Nicaraguan civil war

In 1984, the Sandinistas realized the Miskitos were not aligned in the civil war but were only interested in protecting their land. So discussions were initiated that led to formal recognition of the autonomy of the Atlantic region.

When the Sandinistas were thrown out of office, the newly elected government was still bound by the agreement and created the Nicaragua Institute of Development of the Autonomous Region to administer it. But Nicaragua has immense economic problems and has no money to fund this new department adequately.

With the end of the civil war, tens of thousands of Miskitos have returned to their villages only to find that they have to start from scratch. The ravages of war, a devastating hurricane in 1989 and two killer floods this year have pushed them to the edge of survival.

Samuel Marcado, a Miskito Indian living in Canada recently visited Nicaragua and reports that up to 14,000 returning refugees "are at the mercy of the elements. Many have nothing - no tools, no shelter, and worst of all, no food". He predicts that unless aid comes within a few weeks "we may see hundreds, maybe thousands of Miskito people die of malnutrition and related diseases".

They need food and medicine right away. In the longer run, the Miskitos have the knowledge to recover their traditional ways and protect the forests. But they need the tools - portable mills, hammers, saws, nails, fishing rods and lines, machetes, shovels, hoes and seeds.

Canadians have much to offer. You can get involved by urging Joe Clark to give immediate aid to the Miskitos. You can donate money or materials through the charitable group "Plenty Canada", R. R. 3, Lanark, Ontario, K0G 1K0. They have assured me that money will be sent straight to Nicargua. The non-governmental organization, Panah Panah in Puerto Cabezas works with the Miskitos and has a representative with Plenty Canada.

The plight of the Miskitos is both a humanitarian and an environmental issue that we can do something about.

Algonquin Park facilities will be upgraded by province

The Ministry of Natural Resources will spend approximately $1,200,000 to improve services and facilities in Algonquin Park this winter. This commitment is part of the first phase of a $700-million program to renew public buildings and capital infrastructure across the province.

"Algonquin Park projects will provide 984 person weeks of employment for workers in the local area," said Ernie Martelle, Park Superintendent. "The work done on these projects will certainly have an impact on the appearance on this major provincial tourist attraction and help local families during this recession".

Highlights of Algonquin Park projects are as follows: The West Gate Complex will be rendered safer and more efficient in a joint project with the Ministry of Transportation. Through traffic will be allowed to bypass the gate and better parking facilities will be provided for those visitors wishing to obtain information. The present stone gatehouse and the famous birch bark sign will be retained.

Major projects will be carried out at the new logging museum including the construction of a new visitor centre building (that will house exhibits, a theatre, bookstore and public washrooms). In addition, the Ministry will construct an authentic log dam and chute, and rebuild the existing paddle-wheeled "alligator" (steam driven tugboat used for hauling log booms across lakes).

On two of the Park's most heavily used trails, the Spruce Bog Boardwalk and the Beaver Pond Trail, old boardwalks will be completely replaced.

Shower facilities will be added to Canisbay Lake and Kearney Lake campgrounds.

Renovations will be done on the Portage Store at Canoe Lake and at the Two Rivers Store near Two Rivers Campground.

Washrooms and public buildings will be refurbished at Achray on the Park's east side.

All these projects are over and above the work already begun on Algonquin's major new visitor centre overlooking Sunday Creek. This building is intended to open in time for Algonquin Park's one hundredth birthday in 1993.

Home Support will coordinate new program in Haliburton

Haliburton County Home Support Services acted on the affirmative vote of their Board of Directors on December 14, 1990 and officially registered as the coordinator for the Good Neighbours Campaign in the County of Haliburton, under the sponsorship of the Office for Senior Citizens Affairs, Government of Ontario.

Good Neighbours is a public awareness campaign to encourage individuals to identify and respond to the people who are frail, isolated and vulnerable; also, to reinforce the traditional values found in caring, friendly neighbourhoods.

The Good Neighbours campaign compliments Haliburton County Home Support Services mission of helping the seniors and/or handicapped live comfortably in their own homes.

Marion Kennedy, has agreed to coordinate the launch of the Good Neighbour campaign. Kennedy is looking forward to working with the Public Service and Health Care Agencies and the Municipalities in the entire County of Haliburton and hopes that everyone will get in the spirit of the "Good Neighbour" and "stand by each other".

For futher information, please call Kennedy at Haliburton County Home Support Services - phone (705) 457-2941

Nobody's Business?

It's nobody's business what I drink:
I care not what my neighbours think.
Or how many laws they choose to pass.
I'll tell the world I'll have my glass.
There's one man's freedom can't be curbed,
My right to drink is undisturbed.
So he drank in spite of law or man,
Then got into his old tin can,
Stepped on the gas and let it go
Down the highway, to and fro.
He took the curves at 50 miles,
With bleary eyes and drunken smiles.
Not long till a car he tried to pass.
There was a crash, a scream, and breaking glass.
The other car was upside down,
About 2 miles from the nearest town.
The man was clear, but his wife was caught,
And he needed the help of that drunken sot,
Who sat in a maudlin, drunken daze
And heard the scream and saw the blaze,
But was too far gone to save a life
By helping the car from off the wife.
The car was burned, the mother died,
While husband wept, and baby cried..
And a drunk sat by — yet still some think
It's nobody's business what they drink.

Inventory important for fire insurance

by Doreen Hawman

If your home is damaged or destroyed by fire, would you remember all of the contents? An up-to-date inventory and photographs of your possessions could be invaluable when completing an insurance claim. To simplify the task, the Insurance of Bureau of Canada has printed a Personal Property Inventory form which provides space to list the items, date they were purchased and purchase prices. It is advisable after compiling the records and taking the photos, to store them in a safe place such as your safety deposit box. Be sure to update on a regular basis. You may never have to use these records, but if the occasion should arise, it will help ease the burden at such a traumatic time.

Personal Property Inventory forms are available at your nearest Information Centre or your local insurance agency.

In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 pm. or call 457-2733.

IN MEMORIAM

SAWYER, ELMER - who passed away January 10, 1989.

I will always remember that phone call
It was 7 p.m. by the clock on the wall
And when I sat and held your hand
I wanted your eyes to open - one more time.

I wanted to thank you for teaching us
Whatever we do must be the best
To be kind and thoughtful in every way
And thank God for our blessings every day.

God took you home to sit on his throne
The best - he saved for you
He said you can watch your family from here
I miss you and love you, but just like before
I always know you are so near.

Nelson & Betty Dionne.
